MRS. STRANG RELEASED ON BONDS

Approved by Magistrate Taylor for Monday Evening and Leaves for Home

PROMINENT MEN SIGN IT

Mrs. Grace Ives Strang, whose release under $25,000 was consented to by state's attorney Welch late Monday, and whose bond was later approved by Magistrate Walter Taylor walked away from the Lake county jail at seven o'clock Monday evening, the bond having been filled out by signers whose total property valuation was many times the amount of the bond.

Mrs. Strang immediately went to her home in Highland Park where she is now resting up after her experiences of the past few weeks spent in jail pending action on the charge made against her by the state that she murdered her husband by giving her strychnine.

Mrs. Strang went to Highland Park with her two brothers who had been working so hard for her release even if but for the summer under bonds. The children were not at the jail to meet their mother but they were anxiously awaiting her at their home.

Mrs. Strang plans remaining in Highland Park for the time being with her four children. It is admitted she may take trip some place to get away from the association which the past few weeks have produced.

The signers of the big bond, one of the largest ever submitted to the Lake county courts, included some of the best known men in Highland Park and Deerfield township.

A Chicago newspaper photographer tried his best all the way from Magistrate Taylor's office to the county jail to get a snapshot of Mrs. Strang and several times only interference of counsel, Mr. Dady and others prevented Will Ives, brother of Mrs. Strang, from smashing the camera man's equipment. It is said the photographer was unsuccessful in his attempts.

The signers of the bond were: Grace A. Strang, Charles A. Ives, Wm. G. Ives, brothers; E. A. Warren, Anthony Laenciani, John Udell, Julian H. Zimmerman, Fritz Bahr, Jesse Soby, R. L. Bullock, Theo. S. Knapp, E. L. Terry, E. H. Williams, R. E. Moore, C. E. Thompson.

It is stated that the bondmen mentioned represent in their total property valuations of much over $100,000.

Stolen Auto's Trail Leads to Fox Lake

The trail of a stolen automobile led Captain Wesley Westbrook of the Austin station and a squad of detectives Monday to Fox Lake, where the car was recovered and four men were placed under arrest. A fifth member of the band was arrested before he escaped.

Robert A. Lackey, Oak Park, vice president of the Payson Manufacturing company, was on his way home Friday when three young men asked for a ride, entered his car, threw him out and drove away.

Next day a person who refused to give his name telephoned to Mr. Lackey saying that he had seen the robbery and that one of the men was Harry R. Clarke, Oak Park.

Clarke was arrested and said the car had been driven to Fox Lake. Captain Westbrook went to the lake and recovered the car, arresting Carl Knabe, Louis Larson and two other men whose names he refused to reveal.

First Daily Paper.
"March 11th was the anniversary of the birth of the first daily paper in England, to wit, the Daily Courant," says the London Morning Post. "It was issued in the year 1702 by E. Mallet, against the Ditch in Fleet Street, and it was cynically said of the worthy pioneer that he was the earliest journalist to show any jealousy for no accurate statement of fact."

Saint-Saens a Prodigy.
Saint-Saens commenced to play the piano almost as soon as he learned to walk. He could tell as a child the notes struck by all the clock chimes in the house.

Paddock-Forster Wedding at St. Peter's Church

Wednesday morning at 10:30 o'clock at St. Peter's church in this village occurred the wedding of Miss Mary E. Paddock of Grass Lake and Mr. Erving A. Forster of Chicago.

The church was very prettily decorated for the occasion and the ceremony was performed by Father Joseph Savage, cousin of the bride.

The music for the occasion was furnished by the church choir of Wilmette, with Arthur Buckley as soloist.

The bride wore a gown of ivory satin with an overdress of tulle and carried a prayer book. She was attended by Miss Loretta Gilien of Chicago as Maid of Honor, who wore a gown of pink and carried a bouquet of pink roses. Miss Lillian Forster of Chicago, sister of the groom, and Miss Belle Hughes of Antioch served as bride's maids, the former being attired in lavender and carried a bouquet of lavender sweet peas, while the latter wore a dress of pale green and carried a bouquet of roses and daisies. The rainbow effect being carried out in minute detail.

The groom wore the conventional black and was attended by his brother A. W. Forster of Norfolk, Va., as best man. Walter Forbrick of Grass Lake and Ernest Hartman of Chicago served as ushers.

After the ceremony a wedding breakfast was served at Johnson's Bluff Lake resort followed by a reception at the home of the bride.

Mr. and Mrs. Forster left on the evening train for an extended honeymoon trip through the east. Upon their return they will reside in Chicago. The bride is the eldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Irving Paddock of Grass Lake, and is one of the most popular young ladies of the vicinity. Her friends are numbered by the score and all units in wishing the happy couple a most pleasant voyage on the matrimonial sea.

The groom, who is not widely acquainted here, is a young man of exemplary character and stands high in his profession, which is that of pharmacist.

Many friends and relatives from Chicago were in attendance as well as a large number from this vicinity.

Construct Vault for Remains of Robert Hook

John Sutherland of Waukegan is constructing a crypt in the Fox Lake cemetery for the remains of Robert Hook. Before Mr. Hook died he told Mr. Sutherland he wanted a vault made from field stone taken from the farm at Monsville, where Mr. Hook was born. Mr. Sutherland is carrying out the wishes of Mr. Hook. The field stones are being used for walls and the walls will have a concrete roof and be lined with steel. When the vault is completed the remains of Mr. Hook will be transferred to it from Oakland cemetery.

Milk Producers

Trial Put Over

Hot weather and judges and lawyers maneuvering to get away on their vacations caused the trial of the eight officials of the Milk Producers' Association, indicted for conspiring to arbitrarily fix milk prices, to be continued to September. Judge Joseph H. Flitch, trial-judge in Chicago who has agreed to hear the case, sold it wouldn't be fair to keep a jury locked up for the summer months. Former Governor Denison and Assistant State's Attorney Bell, Michael and Welker agreed to the postponement.

Advice From One Who Knew.
The puppy had been punished and was sulking in a corner. To him came the small daughter of the house, to administer, not comfort, but advice. "You may just as well be good first as last," "Buddy," she admonished. "Everybody that belongs to mother has got to mind. I've been through it all and I know."

Dainty Early Flowers.
There is to me a daintiness about early flowers that touches me like poetry. They blow out with such a simple loveliness among the common herbs of pastures, and breathe their lives so unobtrusively, like hearts whose beatings are too gentle for the world.—Willis.

Modern Spelling.
Professor Millar of the University of Minnesota asked ninety normal students to spell ten words, and the best record was seven of the ten words, repellent, collectible, plenishing, innoculate, consensus, inferred, sacrilegious, dissipate, bilious, villify.

REVIEW OF THE WORLD'S DAIRY INDUSTRY

Commissions Appointed Endeavoring to Arrive at True Status of Industry

DAIRYMEN MUST PROGRESS

The world's dairy industry is receiving, at the present time, more serious investigation and consideration than ever before in the world's history.

Commissions appointed by our Government and by corporate dairy interests are endeavoring to arrive at the true status of the industry in the old world, while commissions appointed by old world governments are making a very careful survey of their home conditions and the available supply of foreign dairy cattle and products.

Some of these Commissions are represented in this country now.

In order, therefore, that all dairy research of the period might have some concentrating point, invitations have been issued, and prospectuses sent by our government to all foreign governments through the American Consular Service, covering the National Dairy Show and the replies received indicate a very keen interest, as noted by some half dozen acceptances of this invitation that have been received from foreign powers, in which it is stated that delegates or commissions will represent them at the show this fall.

So far as our cattle interests are concerned, our home demands possibly afford the best market for good cattle that there is available today, and we should take advantage of the necessary re-adjustment of the world's dairy supplies going on, to put ourselves in shape through a war to the hilt on the scrub at home, and the building up of our herds that will make us invincible when it comes to taking care of the world's needs of dairy products.

However, in point of invention and character of manufacture, a visit by any government commission will undoubtedly discover many things in the dairy machinery and equipment line that will be new to them, and highly important to their progress.

This makes of the dates—October 6th to 12th, 1919, dates of far reaching and vast importance to our National Dairy Industry, and any man associated with the industry who does not prepare to participate in the great events of that week at the National Dairy Show, not seeking to keep up with the procession of progress in his industry.

The Department of our Government most at interest, and the National Dairy Association ask and urge the kindest and heartiest co-operation of all officials of dairy associations in spreading the gospel of this year's National Dairy Show program.

Two Girls Have Narrow Escape from Drowning

Mabel Stickles and Augusta Hucker had a narrow escape from drowning while bathing in Loon Lake last Tuesday afternoon. Before they realized what they were doing they had ventured out too far and being unable to swim well they went down. As they came up they called for help but those about thought their cries were only a joke, and calmly watched them sink once more. Suddenly Gladys Stickles who is a good swimmer saw the situation was serious and immediately set out to render assistance, reaching them none too soon. As they were about to go down the third time she grabbed them and soon had them back to shore. A little later they were brought home. Beyond a bad fright they were uninjured, and are now thanking their lucky stars that Gladys had learned the art of swimming.

Muslings of Martha.
These wonderful business women we hear so much about may be all right, but I'd like to see one of 'em tackle the job of getting up in the mornin' an' gettin' breakfast ter tea before daylight.

Power Pays.
It is said that a sewing machine with an individual motor averages 1,000 stitches a minute, while the old-foot-driven machine accomplishes only 300 or 400 stitches a minute at most.

Calls on Girl; Is Taken

By Sheriff Green

When Edward Croener, alias Edward Wotski, aged 18, called upon his sweetheart Tuesday night he made a serious mistake, as he now occupies a cell in the county jail in Waukegan, charged with the theft on $700 worth of Liberty bonds, certificates of deposit and cash.

Croener had been employed for about a week on the Dering farm, on the Antioch-Fox Lake road. He disappeared and likewise two certificates for $400 and $185 in money belonging to an employee named Davis Coons, and a $50 Liberty bond and $40 in cash belonging to another workman.

It is charged Croener cashed on bond in Chicago, receiving $47, and that he had in his room on Milwaukee avenue, a stolen revolver and a suitcase. He had two rooming places in Chicago.

Traces of Croener was obtained through letters he received from his sweetheart at 2234 Hamburg street, Irving Park, Chicago. Sheriff Elmer Green and two aids planted themselves at the girl's home while an other officer took her out for a walk. Meantime Croener went to the girl's home and was arrested by the officers.

He is declared to have spent a lot of money buying jewelry for the girl and clothes for himself.

Croener at the hearing before Police Magistrate Taylor waived a hearing and was bound over to the grand jury on $3,000 bonds.

Death Claims Recent Resident Saturday

Last Saturday morning at the home of her son, Mr. J. Mann, east of town occurred the death of Mrs. L. J. Smith. The deceased who was 88 years and 4 months of age was a native of the east, having been born and reared in Pennsylvania. Fourteen years ago she entered the family of her son, and when they came to Antioch to reside last March, she came as one of the household. Soon after their arrival here she suffered a stroke of paralysis and has been confined to her bed ever since.

The funeral services were held at the home Monday afternoon and the remains were laid at rest in the Antioch Hillside cemetery.

At the End—Youth.
If I had created men and women, I should have framed them on a type widely different from that which has naturally prevailed—that of the higher mammals. I should have made men and women, not to resemble the great apes as they do, but on the models of insects which, after a life as enterprisers, change into butterflies, and for the brief final term of their existence have no thought but to love and be lovely. I should have set youth at the end of the human span.—From "The Garden of Pleasure," by Anatole France.

Critic Calls New Word.
Tired of the hackneyed phrase, a "gripping" story, originated by some very critic and eagerly snatched up by a lot of advertisers, it has remained for a Boston dramatic critic to discover a new term. He has found a play that is "riveting" in its intensity of interest.

Postal Rates Will Drop on July First

Postmaster Frank B. Huber has received a notice from the Postmaster General which official fixes the re-adoption of pre-war postal rates to take effect on July 1. From the first of the coming month on, the rates of all first class mail will drop from three to two cents an ounce. Drop letters as well as those going out of the city will be two cents while postal cards will be one cent.

The notice from the postal headquarters also states that those persons owning three cent stamped envelopes or two cent stamped cards will have the privilege of returning them to the postoffice and getting them exchanged for two cent envelopes and one cent post cards. No money will be refunded on stamps but stamps of smaller denominations will be given in exchange. The exchange of stamps will be closed after August 1st. All persons wishing to exchange their stamp or envelopes will have the privilege only between July 1 and August 1.

Due to the falling off in mail and the huge increase in the cost of handling mailed material, the Government found it imperative to raise the rates on first class mail matter. With the end of the war, however, foreign mail has increased and sufficient help is again available to handle all of the mailed matter. The law which was passed ordering the raise in mail rates provided also that the rates should be dropped to normal six months after the culmination of hostilities. As the armistice was signed early in November and peace is now assured the rates have been ordered to their pre-war basis again.

Lightning Kills Husband on Honeymoon

A honeymoon trip came to a tragic ending at Camp Lake, Monday, when John Redpath, 33 years old, of Chicago, was struck by lightning while fishing in an open boat at Camp Lake.

Mr. and Mrs. Redpath went to the resort on a honeymoon trip and were fishing in separate boats. The wife returned to shore at the approach of the storm and saw her husband fall in the water.

She called assistance, but Redpath was dead when he was reached by the hotel men. A jagged mark burned the length of his body showed he had been killed instantly. The body was taken to Chicago for burial.

Transmigration of Souls.
A fresh young man was pressing an old gentleman, who evidently felt bored, to give him an illustration of the transmigration of souls, showing how a person's identity might be maintained. At last the old gentleman replied: "Supposing you should die, your soul might appear in a canary bird; when the canary bird died, it might appear in a lion or a tiger; again, it might appear in a jackass—and I might stroke its ears and say, 'My dear fellow, you have not changed a bit'."—Pittsburgh Chronicle-Telegraph.

The Harpachord.
This was the instrument out of which our modern piano grew. It was more like a grand than an upright piano and sometimes had two rows of keys, but it was very inferior in power and tone to the modern instrument. It had no pedals, and the wires were not struck by hammers, but were plucked by quills. The compass of the instrument was about four octaves which was gradually increased as it was improved upon.

"That makes no difference," Daphne stormed, already converted to the shop religion. "Customers must not find the door shut. Run open it at once. Suppose Mrs. Romilly dropped in. We'd lose her—unless this notoriety drives her away." A little blush of shame flickered in Daphne's pale cheeks a moment and went out. She sighed: "I suppose Mr. Dunno has stopped that check, too—if he ever sent it. Oh, dear!"

Then a nurse knocked; brought in a card growling in a large little zebra tree. Daphne scanned it. "Mr. Thomas Varick Duane!" She peered closer at the pencillings and read aloud: "I just learned. I'm heartbroken. Isn't there anything I can do?"

Daphne felt as if outraged society had forgiven her.

"Isn't he a darling?" she murmured. Mrs. Chivils begged a stony, "Well, of course—" She had the poor folks' conscientious scruples against wasting praise on the rich. "You'll want to see him, I presume."

But Daphne had had enough of evil appearance. "See him here? Never!" She glared at poor Mrs. Chivils with a reproof that was excruciating to accept, and ordered her to go down and meet Mr. Dunno and incidentally learn about the check. "Business is business," she said.

Mrs. Chivils descended in all the confusion of a Puritan wife meeting a Cavalier beau. She came back later to say that Mr. Dunno was really very nice, and spoke beautifully and had sent the check and would send another if Daphne wished it, and would make old Mrs. Romilly go on with the order, and would she like some special fruits or soups or something? He was really very nice.

Daphne eyed her with ironic horror and said, "You've been flirting with him! and me so helpless here!"

"Daph—ne!! Klip!!" Mrs. Chivils screamed. The only counter-thrust she could think of was, "And what does Mr. Wimburn say?"

CHAPTER XXVI.

Lella was determined to endure everything that might be necessary to regain her beauty. She would go through any ordeal of knives or plasters or casts or splints or medicines for that. She was quite grim about it. Her resolution extended to the spending of as much of Bayard's money as might be necessary on surgeons' fees and doctors' bills. If she bankrupted Bayard it would be with the tenderest motives.

Five times she went to the operators, made that infernal journey into etherland, knowing what after-noughes waited her, what retching and burning and bleeding. She braved death again and again, took long chances with cowering bravado. And all for Bayard's sake.

One morning when Bayard reached his office after a harrowing all-night vigil at Lella's side he was just falling asleep over the first mail when his telephone snarled. He reached for it with alarm. A voice seemed in his ear:

"Ah you thah?"

"Yes."

"Keep the line, please. Now, you ah through, sir?"

Then a growl replaced the boom, a growl that made the receiver rattle:

"Ah you thah, Mr. Klip? This is Colonel Marchmont. I dare say you remember our conversation about those damned contracts with Wetherell. A little further discussion might not be amiss—if you could make it perfectly convenient to drop ovvah at, say, a quavtah pahst fah?—Good! I shall expect you at that ah!"

Bayard puffed. What new persecution was fate preparing? As he went to the office, he bought an evening paper. A heavily headed cablegram announced that the laborers in the British munition works were striking or threatening to strike. A gleam of understanding came into Bayard's eye. When he reached the desk of Colonel Marchmont he looked unashamed into the revolver muzzle of the old war horse's one eye.

Without any preliminary courtesies or any softening of his previous tone the colonel snorted: "Those devilish contracts you made with Wetherell—The poor fellow is no longer alive—more's the pity, but—Well, I'm afraid I was a bit severe with you. I fancy we might see our way to renewing those contracts at a reasonable figure—say at a 25 per cent reduction from the terms you quoted."

Bayard smiled and shook his head. He bluffed the bluffer. "The prices we quoted included only a fair profit, colonel. Since then materials have been going up in price every minute, owing to the demand from abroad." He kept away

And the home market is booming. We can sell all our product here, and more, too, than we can make."

Colonel Marchmont squirmed, but he was a soldier and loved a good counter-attack. He smiled as he squirmed. Wetherell was avenged when his successor signed new contracts at higher price than he had made. The changing times changed everything; yesterday's exorbitance was today's bargain.

Bayard departed with a wallet full of business. He got back to his office on feet hedged with Mercurial wings. His feet were beautiful on the rug of the president's office.

Bayard felt so kindly to all the world that he hurried to the hospital so long you might have, though. Where've you been, Clay? But wait—you can tell me on the way over to the new shop."

THE MAKING OF A FAMOUS MEDICINE

How Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound Is Prepared For Woman's Use.

A visit to the laboratory where this successful remedy is made impresses even the casual looker-on with the reliability, accuracy, skill and cleanliness which attends the making of this great medicine for woman's ills.

Over 350,000 pounds of various herbs are used annually, and all have to be gathered at the season of the year when their natural juices and medicinal substance are at their best.

The most successful solvents are used to extract the medicinal properties from these herbs.

Every utensil and tank that comes in contact with the medicine is sterilized and as a final precaution in cleanliness the medicine is pasteurized and sealed in sterile bottles.

It is the wonderful combination of roots and herbs, together with the skill and care used in its preparation which has made this famous medicine so successful in the treatment of female ills.

The letters from women who have been restored to health by the use of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound which we are continually publishing attest to its virtue.

LIFT OFF CORNS!

Doesn't hurt a bit and costs only a few cents

Magie! Just drop n' little Freezone on that touchy corn, instantly it stops aching, then you lift the corn off with the fingers. Truly! No humbug!

Try Freezone! Your druggist sells a tiny bottle for a few cents, sufficient to rid your feet of every hard corn, soft corn, or corn between the toes, and calluses, without one particle of pain, soreness or irritation. Freezone is the discovery of a noted Cincinnati genius.

General Pershing's War Map.

In installing General Pershing's war map in the old National Museum building in Washington, the commander's room at the front just as it looked when the map was in actual use, is being reproduced as a setting. Here will be the chairs used by the general and his aids while they studied the map, which changed hourly, night and day, as reports came in and were recorded. The table at which the officers looked over documents will stand as it used to at one side, and the walls will be covered with the identical lineocut that was a background for the map. The map was brought over in pieces now joined together, and the conventional design of the lineocut is said to give an odd kitchenlike domesticity to the room in which General Pershing watched history writing itself in a very literal sense on the wall.

A Fair Proposition.

"Mr. Grahame, I've saved in $3,000 and I want to marry your daughter."

"Do you realize that $3,000 won't last long nowadays?"

"Oh, yes, sir. But it ought to take care of us for at least six months and at the end of that time if I haven't convinced you that I'm an ideal son-in-law you needn't do a thing for us."

As we have to live with ourselves we should see to it that we always have good company.

Authors' Handwriting.

If readers and admirers of the polished sentences of popular authors could see the original manuscripts from which their works are printed they would be given interesting sidelights on the character and personality of the writers. The handwriting of G. K. Chesterton has been described by an English editor as "shocking." W. W. Jacobs, comedy writer of the sea, has all his literary work typed and makes but few corrections on the finished manuscript. Oliver English writers whose copy is reputed to be neat and quite acceptable to a printer are H. G. Wells, Rudyard Kipling, Arnold Bennett and Sir Arthur Conan Doyle. Editors say they never know what to expect from that imaginative genius, H. de Vere Stacpoole. Sometimes his work is neatly typed on good paper, but often it is scribbled to sheets torn from a copybook.

HEARD and SEEN at the CAPITAL

Says He'll Move National Capital to St. Louis

WASHINGTON—Senator Sherman of Illinois threatened the other day to have the capital of the United States removed from Washington to the middle West. The senator is still on the warpath against profligate landlords of the District of Columbia and says if they persist in gouging the public after war-time legislation restraining them becomes operative, he will "up and move" the capital westward to grow up with the country. Washington never was a good place for it, anyway, he insists.

But the Illinois senator does not even have his own state or its metropolis in mind. He suggests St. Louis as the probable place he will pick for the future capital of the nation.

lords extorting consideration," said Senator Sherman. "After peace has been proclaimed, I do not see how a law can be passed which will limit a landlord in the amount of rent he may charge any more than it would be possible to pass a law saying how much a man may charge for wheat or any other commodity.

"It has been reported to me that there will be a general and heavy increase in rents by the landlords. If that happens, I shall immediately introduce a measure transferring the capital of the nation to some other place, possibly St. Louis.

"I do not think that many persons here realize the extent of the feeling which has been aroused among the members of congress by the exorbitant charges for rent and food and clothing they have been compelled to pay in Washington. A bill of the kind I have mentioned will have strong support."

From a military point of view, Washington is about the poorest place that could be selected for capital of the nation, he says.

Nor is it centrally located so far as the interests of the country are concerned.

Dangers of the Uncharted Seas Move Uncle Sam

America is just now embarking upon a great career as a maritime nation.

It is spending billions for ships and building for men to enter the merchant marine. One of the first duties of every maritime nation is to furnish mariners with such data as will enable them to navigate the waters under its jurisdiction with the greatest possible safety. The obligation has not been discharged by the United States. Many lives and property worth millions of dollars are lost annually because the task of charting the coastal waters of the United States and its possessions has never been completed.

Now that the war is over, the finishing of this job is one of the most pressing necessities which the nation faces. Just before we entered the war the coast and geodetic survey celebrated its one hundredth anniversary and went through some other motions, designed to attract the public attention to itself and to the need for an extension of its work. But with the declaration of war against Germany all this came to an end. Fly out of the dozen or so small boats which the survey possesses were taken over by the navy for use as patrols, and more than half of the officers and men went with them, while those who remained were busy making special maps and surveys for the army and navy.

Now that the war is over the coast and geodetic survey is going back to its proper work with energy. Its largest and best boat, the Survey, is now on her way to Alaska via the Panama canal, and others are being repaired and refitted for work on the Pacific coast.

Adoption of a National Highways Policy Likely

THE adoption of a national highways policy by the United States Chamber of Commerce at its annual convention, coupled with recent announcements by Senator Penrose, the next chairman of the senate finance committee, and Senator Bankhead, retiring chairman of the senate committee on post offices and post roads, that they stand for national highways tremendously strengthened and probability of passage of the Townsend bill at the extra session of congress, says David Johnson, president of the American Automobile association.

"A national highway system can be kept within 3 per cent of the total mileage of highways in the United States and still serve our fundamental needs. To make this point clear it may safely be stated that a zone, ten miles in width and 75,000 miles in length, will run more than $5 per cent of the population of the United States, more than 85 per cent of the taxable real estate and more than 65 per cent of the tonnage of farm products."

"Such a system would protect with a military highway having an aggregate length of about 10,500 miles our Atlantic, Gulf, Mexican, Pacific and Canadian borders; would give access to our inland forests, our national parks and open up much of the public domain not now easily accessible, and would afford trunk-line routes for parcel post in the territories where this form of transportation is most intensive in character."

He also says that if as a condition to the building of the national highways in each state a construction of an equivalent mileage of state highways should be required, this would add 75,000 miles of state highways.

This, with the national system, would aggregate 150,000 miles.

Do You Know Meter and Liter? Better Brush Up

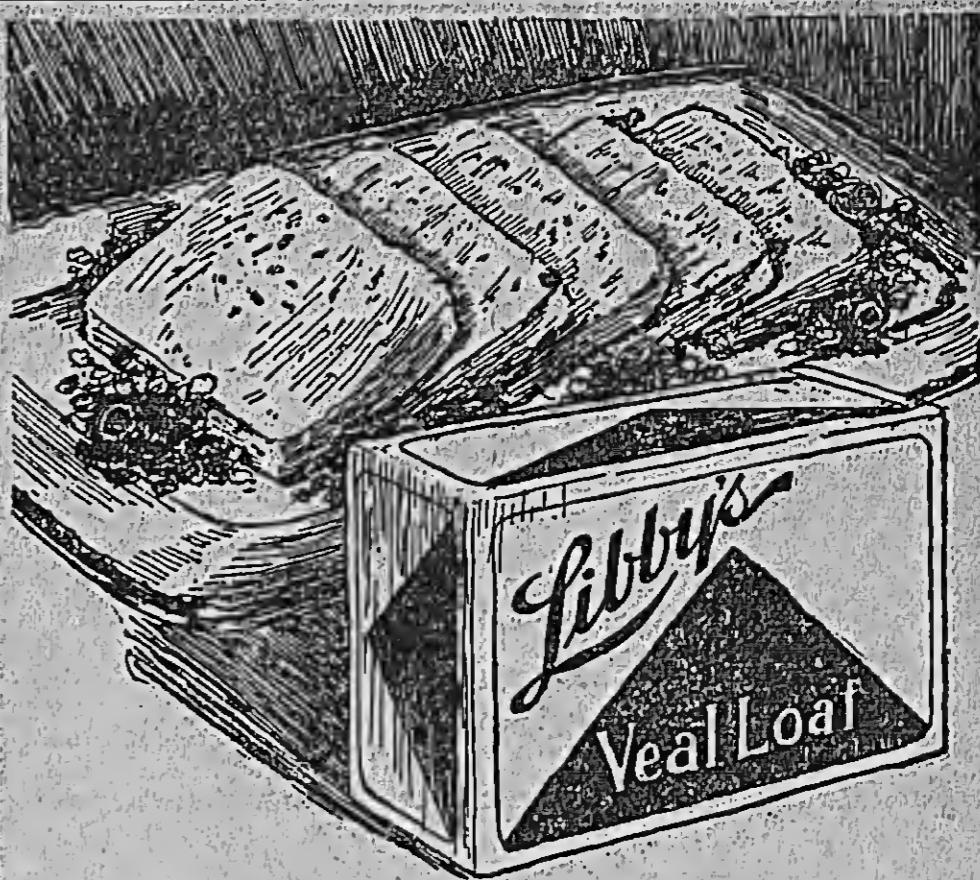

IF YOU do not understand the metric system of measurement, look it up and learn it. For there are strong indications that the meter and the liter will soon displace the yard and the quart in all your dealings. A movement backed by scientific and business organizations in all parts of the country has been started to accomplish this change. And the meter propagandists have made a strong case. The chief reasons why we should abandon our system for the metric system are that the latter is much simpler and easier to learn that it is more accurate, and, above all, that it is now the compulsory system in every civilized country in the world except the United States and Great Britain. That is the big fact. In all of our dealings with foreign peoples and governments we are handicapped because we do not use the same system of measurements. American scientists were compelled long since to adopt the metric system, with the result that many of their publications are incomprehensible. Now the war has convinced thousands of persons of the necessity for using the universal language of measurement in this country, with the result that the meter has many new and influential backers.

"This country has lagged behind the rest of the world by neglecting to adopt a system of quantity expression so simple that the average child of ten can learn its essential features in ten minutes," is the way H. D. Hubbard, one of the experts on weights and measures at the bureau of standards, puts it.

He also says that our failure to cast aside a clumsy medieval system for one that is modern and practical has greatly handicapped us in business abroad and at home.

Officials of the United States bureau of standards feel certain that this country will ultimately use the metric system.

Everything Lovely.

"Howdy, Cap!" saluted an acquaintance, upon meeting the well known Humpus Ridge citizen on a shopping expedition in Tunbridge. "How's everything going with you?"

"Pher'n frog hair, Jurd!" triumphantly replied Cap Johnson. "Of course, my wife has been sorta puny, yur of late, and several of the children have got the measles and mumps and one thing and another, and the lightning struck the corner of the house tudder night and like to have tore the whole place to pieces, and one of the kids fell out of tree and broke his arm, and a feller took a shot at me day be fore yesterday and ventilated my ear, and such as that, but I swiped for a running horse last week, and a couple of my hounds have got sick pupps apiece. Aw, I tell you, they can't keep a good man down!"—Kan-sas City Star.

Well Known.

I was hurrying home up the hill when a little boy came rushing down it so fast that he ran headlong into me. He was quite breathless and very flushed.

"I don't know your pa, little boy," said I.

He looked at me in round-eyed wonder and his pink cheeks fairly stuck out.

"You don't know my pa?" he said incredulously. "Why, I know pa just as easy!"—Exchange.

Trio Gets $1,800 Diamond Ring Hidden in Clothes, She Tells Police.

Chicago.—Three ungentlemanly holdup men compelled Mrs. Grace Harvey partially to disrobe in her apartment at 3014 South Michigan avenue. For the robbers, undoubtedly had advance information on Mrs. Harvey's jewels. There was one item of an $1,800 diamond ring. She slipped this down the front of her house-gown when she heard the men at the front door order her maid, Bessie Jensen, to hold up her hands. They had rung the doorbell.

Yet, though the ring was invisible, the robbers immediately demanded that she produce it. And when she protested ignorance of such a ring she was ordered to disrobe.

Three Are Electrocuted by Clothesline Contact

Honolulu, Hawaii.—Mrs. James S. Nott, her six-year-old baby boy and a Chinese servant were electrocuted while hanging out clothes in the rear yard of her home in Honolulu.

An electric light extension, leading from a back porch to a fernery, had been strung across the galvanized wire clothes line. In some manner the insulation became broken and the clothesline was charged with electricity.

The Chinese servant was the first to die. Mrs. Nott, in going to his aid, was electrocuted. It is believed that the little boy attempted to help his mother and in so doing was killed.

Rock Springs, Wyo.—Arising from her bed at 3:30 a.m., while sleeping soundly, four-year-old Luella Davis unlocked a door, left the home of her parents, walked four blocks to her grandmother, broke a window pane with her fists, unlatched the window fastening, hoisted the sash, crawled through the window, climbed the stairs to the second floor of the house and was discovered—still sound asleep—standing against a wall that barred her further progress.

Her presence was betrayed by the barking of a watchdog, the noise made by her entrance not having aroused her grandmother's family.

Aside from a few cuts in her hand, the child is not suffering as a result of her remarkable performance, which is thought to be one of the strangest cases of somnambulism ever recorded.

Local and Personal Happenings

Saturday at the Crystal "Smiles" with J. and K. Lee.

Miss Lucille Mathews of Kenosha was an Antioch visitor over Sunday.

Harold E. Williams has purchased of Emma Klemann and husband, their cottage on north Main street.

Mrs. Clara Turner arrived home Saturday afternoon after having spent the past few months at Ocean Park, Calif.

Mr. and Mrs. Kocourek and children motored out from Chicago and spent Sunday at the home of their parents, Mr. and Mrs. Hullik.

Helen Gray, Vera Nelson and Anna Kret were three of the eighth grads girls who attended the graduating exercises last Saturday at Area to receive their diplomas.

At their last meeting the board of supervisors appropriated $1,000 to the Lake County fair association, $1,000 to the county agricultural association and $150.00 to the Farmers Institute.

Mrs. W. A. Christofferson and children of Keueeba spent the fore part of the week with relatives at this place. Mr. Christofferson visited here over Sunday.

The next meeting of the ladies Guild will be held at the home of Mrs. Fred Harden Wednesday afternoon, June 25. Everybody cordially invited. Maude Kettelhut, Vice President.

Don't fail to attend the Eastern Star dance tomorrow night, if you want to have the best kind of a time. Music by McCormick's orchestra. Tickets 50 cents a person. Refreshments served on the main floor. Every body come.

Mr. and Mrs. Elmer Stickles have received a letter from their son Frank, saying that he had left Virginia and was on his way to Camp Grant. They expect him home the latter part of the week.

On account of the severe storm of last Thursday evening, and the fact that there was no lights until late, there was no meeting of Antioch Chapter, O. E. S. The next meeting will be held Thursday evening, June 26. All members are requested to attend as there are bills to pay and other business to be transacted.

When Miss Peck, who held the position as teacher of the primary room in the grade school during the past year, left for her summer vacation at the close of school, she was engaged by the board to return here for another year. But on account of her mother being in very poor health she has been obliged to send in her resignation.

Notice to all Mystic Workers of Sweet Fern camp No. 407. Meeting nights have been changed from the first and third Thursdays to the first and third Friday of every month. Every member is requested to be present at the next meeting, Friday, June 20. Some very important business to be transacted. Entertainment and refreshments after meeting.

The board of education of the grammar school have engaged Mr. Daniel McTaggart as principal for the coming year. Mr. McTaggart has taught in the schools of Lake County for six years and has made good in every location. He was in overseas service for eighteen months, but received his discharge this spring. He was sent here by County Superintendent of Schools, T. A. Simpson, and brings with him the best of recommendations. It is predicted that he will make a success of his work here.

Savage's Pavilion Will Open

Savage's pavilion at Chainel lake will be formally opened Saturday evening, June 21, under the management of E. Brinkman. Dancing, bowling, soft drinks, ice cream and cigars. Lively music. A good time for everybody. Open every evening during the season.

To Fill Floor Cracks.

A very complete filling for open cracks in floors may be made by thoroughly soaking old newspapers in a paste made of one pound of flour to three quarts of water, or a less quantity in those proportions. Put one tablespoonful of alum in the mixture and stir thoroughly until brought to a boiling heat. Make the final mixture about as thick as putty and apply with a putty knife. It will harden like paper mache.

Protect the Milk Snake.

The milk snake, instead of stealing the farmer's milk, makes constant war upon rats who annually cost the country millions of dollars in the destruction of cereals. They like to live under barns and porches, and can follow through a rat hole where a ferret couldn't go, and eat the young rats. They eat meadow mice and field mice also.

Mrs. Clara Johnnott spent Saturday in Chicago.

Mrs. Ruth Klinrade of Kenosha spent Sunday with her parents here.

Dorothy Banks spent Monday and Tuesday with relatives in Chicago.

Mrs. John Traynor spent the first of the week with relatives in Milwaukee.

Mr. and Mrs. Robt. Trierer and Mrs. Brite of Norwood Park were Antioch visitors Wednesday.

Margaret McGraw of Lake Beulah, spent a few days of last week at the John Traynor home.

Mrs. Harry Isaacs left Monday for Chicago, where she will enter the Mary Thompson hospital for a serious operation.

Money to build a band stand to be located on the Somerville lot, just north of the State bank, was raised by popular subscription Monday. The contract to build the same has been let to Earl Horton who will begin the work at once. The first concert will be held in the new stand Thursday evening, June 26.

Where Papa Scored.

Father—"I never smoked when I was your age. Will you be able to tell that to your son when you are my age?" Willie—"Not with such a straight face as you do, father. You beat me there."

Apt Simile.

The principal speaker at a political meeting was a budding orator who loved the light of publicity. Grasping the speaker by the arm on the conclusion of his long address, the chairman said: "Your speech was like a glass of good champagne," here the chairman smiled pleasantly, "lots of froth and very dry!"

Renews Carbon Paper.

An additional period of usefulness may be secured from a partially used sheet of carbon or transfer paper by simply holding it over an open flame such as a lamp, candle or match, with the carbon side down. The wax substances of the unused parts will melt and run into the thinner sections of the parts which are worn out.

FLY ATLANTIC IN SIXTEEN HOURS

Non-Stop Flight Is Achieved by British Naval Airplane Officer.

AMERICAN NAVIGATES PLANE

Both Pilot and Navigator in Good Spirits When They Came Down Near Clifden, Ireland—Flew Upside Down at Times.

London, June 17.—To Jack Alcock, a captain in the British royal air force, and his navigator, Lieut. Arthur W. Brown, an American, goes the honor of having made the first non-stop flight across the Atlantic, from Newfoundland to Ireland. The Daily Mail's $50,000 prize is theirs.

Forty minutes after eight o'clock Sunday morning their big Vickers-Vimy biplane landed on the beach near Clifden, Galway. They made the flight in 10 hours and 27 minutes, having left St. Johns, Newfoundland, at 4:13 Saturday afternoon (Greenwich time), 12:13 New York time.

Both pilot and navigator were in good spirits, but terribly fatigued. Every mile of the flight was a terrible battle against the elements. Of the human qualities that combined to conquer the air on this direct transatlantic route unshakable pluck was unquestionably the decisive factor. Immediately after landing, Captain Alcock said:

"We were tired, being alone in the fog and drizzle. Sometimes we found ourselves flying upside down while enveloped in the heavy blanket of fog. Our wireless was useless, for the greater part of the flight. The wireless propeller blew off soon after we started from St. Johns. Our receiver was much jammed by strong signals not intended for us."

Both Alcock and Lieutenant Brown were in good spirits when they made their landing. The machine suffered some minor damages through coming down rather heavily on the sandy shore, but neither Alcock nor Brown suffered any injury.

The remarkable flying time, averaging close to two miles a minute, is creditable to a favorable wind, which at times added 30 miles on hour to the speed of the biplane.

The landing was rough. The fuselage bowled into the sand and the linen on the under-surface of the lower wings was ripped. Neither Alcock nor Brown was injured. Still they crawled from their cockpits and shook hands.

The flight was a triumph of air navigation. Lieutenant Brown plotted a course that brought the airplane to a midpoint on the west Irish coast. Clifden is a seaport and market town 20 miles southwest of Westport.

Shortly after the plane took the air at 6:13, Greenwich time, Saturday afternoon (11:13 a. m. Chicago time), the propeller of the wireless sending generator blew off. This explained the silence of the radio instruments. The receiving apparatus remained in working trim, and throughout the flight wireless signals were picked up.

A heavy fog enveloped the ship during part of the flight and made navigation difficult and at times impossible.

The course flown was the same which Harry Hawker planned. The biplane flew almost directly above the spot where the little Sopwith flopped into the Atlantic.

While a thousand persons witnessed the take-off, only a handful of startled villagers were within seeing distance when the plane crashed to its landing. Several fishing vessels off the west coast sighted the ship as it swept in from the Atlantic.

Within a few minutes after the landing Clifden's thousand inhabitants were pressed about the plane. The aviators were carried to the town on the shoulders of the enthusiastic residents.

Captain Alcock flushed in London the news of completion of the flight. The Vickers-Vimy company has wired a request that he and Brown wait at Clifden for the arrival of mechanics who will repair the plane. It is planned to have Alcock continue the flight to England and give an exhibition over London.

Both Alcock and Brown stood the journey well.

"Except for difficulties with fog and the loss of our wireless propeller, the trip was uneventful," Captain Alcock said. "Both engines performed in splendid fashion. From the minute we took off there appeared to be no doubt of our success."

The plane was built originally to bomb Berlin. The armistice was signed before it could be put into war service. It has a cruising radius of 2,440 miles.

U. S. TROOPS WIN FIGHT IN JUAREZ

American Soldiers Cross Rio Grande Ten Minutes After Order Is Given.

YANKS TAKE MANY PRISONERS

Colonel Hadsell's Men Open General Engagement With Artillery Fire—Rebels Driven From Race Track—Cavalry Charges.

El Paso, Tex., June 17.—American troops and Mexican rebels under Villa fought a general engagement at the race track to the south of Juarez shortly after two o'clock Monday morning. The Americans were victorious. Villa's rebels were driven from the race track by the American rifle and machine-gun fire. Many prisoners were taken by the American cavalry, which surrounded the rebels on the east and southeast, according to an official announcement issued by the army headquarters here.

At 2:05 in the morning Colonel Hadsell's troops opened the general engagement with artillery fire against the Villistas in the old federal trenches to the east and southeast of Juarez.

An American soldier shot and killed a Mexican sniper who fired on him from an adobe house. Orders have been given for the American soldiers to shoot all snipers. A woman and another Mexican on the roof with the rebels were captured.

Private Richard Casey, eighty-second artillery, was shot through the chest; Private Alfred Friedman of the Twenty-fourth Infantry was shot in the leg, and Sergeant R. M. Buckles of the Ninth engineers was struck in the thigh by snipers' bullets prior to the crossing of the American troops. This increases the American casualties to two killed and seven wounded.

Having advanced through Juarez with the armored motor trucks in the vanguard, the Twenty-fourth Infantry column halted between Juarez and the race track at 1:30 in the morning to permit the federal infantry to retire into the town.

The American soldier is known to have been killed thus far in the fighting. He was a gunner in the eighty-second artillery. He was struck by a bullet sent by a Mexican sniper.

Immediately after this Brig. Gen. J. B. Erwin ordered 25 American sharpshooters to return the fire and drive out the Mexican snipers.

It was shortly after this that the American artillery opened.

The decision of the Americans to take part in the fighting was the result of the killing of a man and a woman in El Paso by shots from the rebel forces, who for several days have been attempting to capture Juarez from the Carranzistas.

Others shots have fallen into El Paso and the American army officers decided to move into Mexican soil to stop it.

It was at 11 o'clock at night that the order to advance across the river was given, and in less than ten minutes more than 3,000 American troops were on Mexican soil.

The Fourth battalion of the Twenty-fourth Infantry (Negro), United States regulars, crossed the international bridge to Juarez at 11 o'clock.

The Fifth and Seventh cavalry (regulars) crossed the international boundary at three fords to the east of El Paso.

A battalion of the eighty-second artillery crossed the Rio Grande to the east of the stockyards.

Col. Selah H. Tompkins of the Seventh cavalry was in command of the cavalry brigade which crossed at the fords and Colonel Hadsell was in command of the infantry. Two armored motorcars rumbled over the bridge at 10:55 p. m., going to Juarez.

By midnight colored soldiers of the Twenty-fourth Infantry were patrolling the principal streets of Juarez. All Americans without special permits were taken to the bridge and ordered to the American side.

The intervention of the Americans in the battle followed a day or success for Villa. Martin Lopez, his chief lieutenant, was inside the city soon after six o'clock, leading his men in desperate house-to-house fighting.

Col. Francisco Del Arco assumed command of the federal forces in the field opposing the Villa assault after Colonel Escobar was wounded, and immediately cleared the buildings and railroad cars along the Mexico Northwestern and Mexican Central railroads of Villa rebels.

At dusk the Villa forces were again where they were when they started their attack at 4:40 in afternoon—south of the agricultural college and north of the race track.

AMERICAN TROOPS OUT OF MEXICO

Yanks Return to United States Soil After Utter Rout of Villa.

TAKE 100 HORSES IN DASH

General Cabell Assures the Mexican Federal Commander at Juarez There Was No Idea of Violating Mexican Sovereignty.

El Paso, Tex., June 18.—All American troops which crossed to the Mexican side at eleven o'clock Sunday night have returned to the American side, a report received at military headquarters stated.

The cavalry brigade and artillery crossed near Ysleta, Tex., 12 miles southeast of here.

The infantry troops started withdrawing from Juarez to El Paso in obedience to orders by Maj. Gen. Do Rosy C. Cabell, commander of the Southern department, who arrived from San Antonio and crossed the international bridge for a conference with Gen. Francisco Gonzales, supreme commander of the Juarez troops, after conferring with Brig. Gen. James B. Erwin, commander of the El Paso border district and the expeditionary force which crossed into Mexico.

At the conference with General Gonzales, General Cabell agreed to withdraw the American troops as soon as they could get them together.

General Gonzales then asked the American border commander if he could not have the infantry withdrawn by 10:30 a. m., which request was granted.

General Gonzales also requested General Cabell to make it known through the press to the people of the United States that he, General Gonzales, had not requested assistance from the United States in handling the situation.

"I told General Gonzales that there was no idea of invading Mexican sovereignty and that the Indians would withdraw as soon as possible," General Cabell announced, following the interview.

At 10:45 a. m. the Twenty-fourth Infantry started marching across the international bridge from Juarez and at eleven o'clock the entire command was back on American soil, after having spent exactly eleven hours on Mexican soil.

American cavalry forces returned from Mexico with 100 Villa cavalry horses and nine prisoners. The commanding officers reported four Villa followers were killed when the adobe headquarters was charged.

Mayor Charles Davis issued a statement saying he regretted the expedition to Juarez Sunday night because of the bad effect it would have upon the situation in Mexico, where Americans owned large interests in districts frequented by Villa.

Upon his return to military headquarters Major General Cabell announced that he had ordered one battalion of four mountain canon to El Paso from Camp Stanley, Tex., for the use of the American artillery commander at Fort Bliss should these mountain guns be needed against the Villa forces.

He also confirmed the ordering of six companies of the Nineteenth Infantry from Douglas, Ark., to El Paso.

BIG ARMY SWINDLE BARED

Forged War Risk Check Plot May Result in Arrests—Washington Headquarters for Gang.

Chicago, June 14.—The United States government has been defrauded of $1,000,000, it was disclosed, through forgeries of army allotment checks.

Army intelligence officers and the secret service have been investigating for three months and arrests are expected. Washington is said to be the headquarters of the band operating the swindle, which has representatives in every city in the country. Chicago declared one of the chief centers.

Information of the conspiracy is said first to have been received when clerks checking the allotment rolls discovered payments to many persons whose names did not appear on the government rolls.

Washington Flying Field Closed.

Washington, June 17.—Bolling Field, the largest air service flying field in the vicinity of Washington, has been closed by the war department. The reason for the closing of the field was not given out.

Open California Airplane Line.

San Francisco, June 17.—An airplane piloted by Al Wilson arrived here from Los Angeles, completing what was claimed as the first commercial passenger-carrying flight between the two cities.

LITTLE WOMAN TRAPS BURGLARS

Tiptoeing Into Dark Home She Produces Two Intruders for Police.

VOICE SCARES THEM

Had Loot Crammed in Gunny Sack, but Drop Guns When Woman Speaks—One Long Wanted by Police.

Chileno.—She's not knee-high to the proverbial duck. In fact, the pistol she held probably would have kicked her over backward had she pulled its trigger.

Yet Mrs. Oliver T. Martin, wife of a wealthy tobacconist living at 84 East 14th eighth street, had the nerve, And that enabled her to capture two burglars, one of whom the entire police force has been trying and failing to capture for several months.

It happened thus:

Mrs. Martin was in her husband's store at 910 East 14th eighth street. A neighbor telephoned that two burglars were ransacking her apartment. Get Out Big Pistol.

She notified the Wabash avenue police and directed them to meet her in the vestibule of the building. Seizing a big automatic pistol, she rushed to the entrance.

Policemen Edward McGuire, Patrick McInerney and Thomas Cassidy were there ringing the doorbell when she arrived.

"Don't do that. You'll alarm them," cried Mrs. Martin. "Let's catch 'em dead or alive." She held the big gun steadily and led the way to the second floor.

The Martin apartment was dark and silent when the plucky woman unlocked the door softly. She crept in ahead of the policemen and stopped to listen. A slight noise came from the library.

"Are any burglars in there?" Mrs. Martin demanded to know. She switched on the reception hall light.

"Yes, I'm one," answered a voice in the library, before the horrified policemen could protest at Mrs. Oliver's method of criminal procedure. The voice materialized in the shape of a youth.

"There are two here. Where is the other?" the little woman persisted.

"Hero I am," answered another voice from the dining room. Another youth stepped forward.

Burglars Drop Guns.

Investigation showed both burglars had dropped their revolvers on the floor at the sound of Mrs. Martin's voice. In the dining room was their loot sack crammed with jewelry and silverware valued at several thousand dollars.

One of the burglars, Charles Bratton, has a long police record and has been sought repeatedly for numerous burglaries not holding throughout the city. He gave his address at 213 East Forty-eighth street, but that was found to be fictitious.

The other, Edward Sandler, who also gave a fictitious address, declared he was an "amateur burglar."

DOGS FIND STILL AND DRINK

Police Wonder When Canine Stagger Along Streets in an Oregon Town.

Baker, Ore.—With dogs blear-eyed and wobbly in their underpinnings, staggering along suburban streets and in other ways acting queer, police officers are beginning to take notice of a serious condition of the canine population of Baker.

In recent days many of the unfortunate brutes have been sent to the pound and the last one captured had to be killed. Every symptom points to their being drunk, and the belief is that the keen scent of these four-legged tipplers has "nosed" out a moonshine plant.

And now the officers are taking precautions to prevent two-legged animals of another species acting in a similar manner.

THE ANTIOCH NEWS, ANTIOCH, ILL.

ALLIES GIVE OUT TEXT OF GERMAN REPLY TO TREATY

Injustice of Pact in Its Present Form Is Cited in Document.

DECLARIS ARMISTICE AGREEMENT VIOLATED

Foe Uses 60,000 Words to Reply to Demands of the Victors—Says Germany's Importance Is Independent of Military Position.

Paris, June 10.—Germany's importance is independent of her temporary military and political position. If she is not admitted (to the League of Nations) immediately on the signing of peace it is impossible to speak of a League of Nations."

This is one of the points raised by Germany in her 60,000-word reply to the peace treaty, in which she makes a long series of counter-proposals. A summary of that reply was issued by the committee on public information on the eve of the delivery to Count von Brockdorff-Rantzau by the allies of the intended pact.

On the whole the summary covers little new ground, the main points of the German arguments having been covered in press dispatches during the last few weeks. Beyond putting official stamp on those dispatches, the summary reveals, however, some interesting details. It shows, also, that the German reply was much stronger, both in text and tenor of protests and counter-demands, than hitherto indicated.

Main Thread of Reply.

The main thread of the German answer is the charge that the original peace treaty constitutes a breach of the solemn armistice agreement, based on the Wilsonian 14 points. It says the treaty would mean "the complete enslavement of the German people and the betrayal of all the world's cherished hopes of peace." The right of self-determination, the Germans assert, has been "wilfully violated throughout."

It is difficult to see, Germany avers, how and harsher terms could have been dictated to the former imperialistic and irresponsible government. Many speeches of allied statesmen and of President Wilson are then quoted as saying the war was against that government, not against the German people. In the words of the summary:

"Today, however, the allied powers are racing not a irresponsible German government but the German people ruling its own future for itself. This has been utterly disregarded in the draft treaty."

The treaty is described as "merely a celebration of the first triumph of imperialist and capitalist tendencies."

Won't Barter Human Beings.

In another passage the reply says Germany "cannot consent to the bartering of human beings," and later:

"The German government declines to make any reparation in the form of punishment, and still more emphatically declines to pass on to individual parts of the population the punishment intended for the whole of the community."

An annexation of the Saar district is called the creation of another Alsace-Lorraine. As for those provinces, Germany claims their cession without consulting the population would be a new wrong! She admits that "according to present conceptions of right, an injustice was committed in 1871, when the people were not consulted."

Acceptance of the trial of the ex-kaiser on a question of his extradition from Holland are flatly refused on the ground that "German subjects can be brought before a foreign court without established law or legal basis." Nor will she consent to the extradition of other subjects accused of war crimes, but instead proposes an international court of neutrals "to judge the fact of crime." The punishment, however, she claims, must remain with the national courts.

The document bitterly assails the abolition of all German rights outside Europe as "irreconcilable with the preliminary negotiations and as wholly impossible to a great people who not only have supreme needs for markets and supplies but who have shown themselves capable of sharing the world's task of colonization."

A summary of the German protests and counter-proposals as computed from today's official resume, follows:

Reparation.

Germany accepts responsibility only for civilian losses in the Belgian and French areas occupied by her in the war. She agrees to pay not more than $25,000,000,000, provided her other counter-proposals are accepted. Characterizing the filled plan for a repartition.

GENERAL BIDDLE GETS LEAVE

Succeeded as Commander of American Troops in England By Colonel Pierce.

London, June 10.—General Biddle, who has been in command of the American troops in England since the United States entered the war, has relinquished his command to Colonel Pierce. General Biddle will remain in Europe on leave for some time and probably will visit the continental battlefields.

tions commission as infringing on German sovereignty, she proposes a "cooperative German commission" to work alongside the allied body.

Germany accepts the obligation to pay for all damages sustained by the civil populations in the occupied parts of Belgium and France, inasmuch as she brought upon them the terrors of war by a breach of international law through the violation of neutrality.

The Germans refuse, however, to pay reparation to other occupied territories in Italy, Montenegro, Serbia, Roumania and Poland, on the ground that "no attack in contravention to international law was involved."

She refuses to pay the costs of the allied-American armies of occupation, considering this "both unnecessary and uneconomical."

She declares the Poles have not so far shown themselves trustworthy protectors of the national and religious rights of minorities, and asks a concession to assess damages caused by recent Polish disturbances in German-inhabited regions.

Occupation.

She demands, in words of bitter protest, that all allied troops be withdrawn within six months of the signing of peace.

Negotiations.

She insists she has a right to oral discussion of the practical application of the principles upon the acceptance of which by her and her envoys shall stand down her arms.

Saar.

"Purely German territory." She claims important industrial districts beyond the coal mines are demanded from her, but "even the cession of the mining district could not be admitted." She is willing to guarantee a supply of coal, "but the total coal computed to exist in the Saar inlines would represent a hundred times the maximum France demands." Except for 8 years under French rule, the population has been attached to Germany for over a thousand years. Reconsideration of the whole question is demanded.

Schleswig.

She charges the demarcation for a plebiscite has been traced through purely German territory and goes further than Denmark herself wishes to go.

Upper Silesia.

Cession "cannot be demanded at all." It is added that "Upper Silesia owes everything to Germany and Germany cannot dispense with Upper Silesia, while Poland does not really need it." Germany is prepared to cede such parts as are truly Polish. In all territories east and west, where cession is demanded, she says it must be preceded by a plebiscite with universal suffrage administered under fair conditions by a neutral power after evacuation of foreign troops.

West Prussia.

Germany is ready to cede to Poland such west Prussian territories as are indisputably Polish.

East Prussia.

Germany cannot consent to the severance of East Prussia, with a German population of 1,500,000 from the German empire. A bridge must be absolutely prepared.

Danzig.

This purely German town must remain within the German empire. Germany refuses to make it a free city, but is willing to make it and Koontzberg, free ports to give Poland access to the sea.

Alsace-Lorraine.

The population alone should decide whether it wants to belong to France or Germany or wants to be an independent state. "If France is to take over the results of Germany's effort she must equally take over a proportionate share in the German debt."

German-Austria.

Germany cannot pledge herself to oppose a possible desire of German Austria to be united with her colonies.

The treaty clauses are called "unjust." Germany claims she has a natural claim to colonies from her culture and undeniably colonial accomplishments.

Russia.

It conflicts with a peace of right and justice to demand from Germany to recognize beforehand any treaties which her present enemies may make with the states which were formerly part of the Russian empire.

"Germany," says the reply, "has expressly accepted President Wilson's 14 points, and nothing else." By eliminating Germany from the world's trade, it is asserted, her enemies might get rid of a troublesome competitor, but the world already impoverished by the war would become infinitely poorer." She promises in her counter-proposals to set an example in disarmament offering to give up all naval and military weapons to the minimum point required for police work in maintaining law and order internally.

Trial of Ex-Kaiser.

"As to the trial of the ex-kaiser, Germany cannot recognize the justification of such criminal prosecution, which is not founded upon any legal basis, or agree to the competence of the special tribunal proposed."

where the doughboys distinguished themselves.

FRANCE TO HAVE U. S. CRAFT

Chairman Hurley of Shipping Board Approves Orders for 500,000 Tons of Ships.

Paris, June 10.—Orders placed in American shipyards for 500,000 tons of merchant ships to go under the French flag have been approved by Edward N. Hurley.

PEACE TERMS ARE UPHELD IN FINAL REPLY TO ENEMY

Few Changes as Allies Stand Pat on the Big Points.

GERMANS MUST SIGN TREATY BY MONDAY

ARMED Are Ready to Move Eastward if Acceptance Is Not Prompt Justice Is Demanded for 7,000,000 Dead Because of Prussian Brutality.

Paris, June 17.—The "big four" last word about peace terms was handed to the German delegation shortly before seven o'clock Monday evening. Its delivery was delayed by a several hours' wrangle over one of the chief concessions—civilian control of the occupied Rhine districts. Again France's "Tiger" won his point after a long and fiery debate. The concession was stricken from the unceded document.

Immediately upon receipt of the document Count von Brockdorff-Rantzau, president of the German peace delegation, left by special train for Vervins. There he will submit them to President Ebert, who, in turn, will lay them before his cabinet, of which Rantzau, as foreign minister, is a member—preparatory to reading them in the national assembly. That body, according to all recent news from Germany, is to decide on the final "yes" or "no."

Clemenceau Lashes Germans.

With the revised treaty Paul Dautscha, secretary of the peace conference, handed Count von Brockdorff-Rantzau a 4,500-word "covering" letter, written by Clemenceau, premier of France, explaining the revised treaty handed to Germany, lashes the vanquished empire with a bitter, stinging indictment, lest its former or present masters, deeming clemency weakness, rally once more for an attempt to turn defeat into triumph.

History's most momentous peace document, now revised beyond revision, is thus accompanied by the most aggressive, the most flying diplomatic note on record. It is indeed a "covering" letter, for it covers all the sins of the foe, all his dark deeds before and during the war, and all the recklessness by which he has been condemned and must suffer for those sins. It is, at the same time, a sharp rebuke to the Teuton peace parliamentaries for "utterly failing to understand the position in which Germany stands today."

This fact, the French premier explains, forces him to open his letter with "a clear statement of the judgment of the world which has been formed by practically the whole civilized mankind." Then he enumerates, not under so many headings, but in smoother and eloquent sequence, the long series of crimes to which, he says, the foe must turn if he seeks the reason for the stern justice of the peace.

Germany, he says, tried for years before the war to dictate and to tyrannize over a subservient Europe. She taught her subjects the doctrine that might was right.

She armed feverishly by land and sea and spread the falsehood that her neighbors were jealous of her.

She developed a widespread system of espionage and intrigue all over the world.

She kept Europe in a ferment by threats of violence.

She encouraged Austria to declare war on Serbia at 48 hours' notice, fully aware that the conflict would become general.

She conducted the war in a savage and inhuman manner.

She violated Belgian neutrality and systematically terrorized that country's inhabitants.

She was the first to use poison gas.

She was the first to bomb and shell defenseless towns.

She caused the deaths of 7,000,000 men, and injuries and sufferings to 20,000,000 others.

It also puts the powers on record as willing to receive suggestions for discharging the German reparational obligation.

This opens the way to oral discussions the Germans asked for—but not until peace is signed. It removes the grounds on which the Germans charged infringement on their sovereignty and national pride, in the reparations transactions.

Another change in the treaty text provides for the plebiscite in upper Silesia for which the Germans had insisted. It also guarantees coal from that province (presumably in the event that the plebiscite goes against Germany).

Drop Kiel Canal Question.

The original proposal of an international commission for the administration of the Kiel canal has been dropped. The Germans had declared they would accept such a commission only if other straits were similarly treated (alluding manifestly to the Suez and Panama canals).

Among the modifications also are frontier rectifications in West Prussia.

The third zone of the Schleswig-Holstein is omitted in the new draft. The Germans had charged that this zone went further than Denmark herself wished to go.

The Germans are allowed a temporary increase of their army from 100,000 to 200,000, which meets their plea for a sufficient force to maintain law and order in the transition period.

The revised document also contains a declaration of intention to submit within a month of the signature of peace a list of those accused of violations of the laws and customs of war.

The German reply had denied the allies right to extradite and try the ex-kaiser or any other German citizens. It declared Germany's willingness for an international neutral court to establish the fact of crime, the punishment to be left to the national courts.

Germany's claims regarding Danzig are rejected. Danzig is made a free city. Its inhabitants will be autonomous and do not come under Polish rule. Clemenceau's covering letter explains that the city forms no part of the Polish state.

Poland, however, by the treaty, has been given "certain economic rights" in Danzig.

The German reply said:

"Danzig, a purely German town, must remain with the German empire, to make it a free city and to surrender certain of its rights to Poland would lead to violent opposition and a continuous state of war in the East." The Germans, however, offered to make Danzig, as well as Koepulzberg, free ports.

Covers Foe's Sins.

Like a judge who, before modifying a sentence, wishes to impress upon the prisoner the full weight of his guilt and pound into his brain the fact that the leniency is really undeserved, Georges Clemenceau, premier of France, explains the revised treaty handed to Germany, lashes the vanquished empire with a bitter, stinging indictment, lest its former or present masters, deeming clemency weakness, rally once more for an attempt to turn defeat into triumph.

History's most momentous peace document, now revised beyond revision, is thus accompanied by the most aggressive, the most flying diplomatic note on record. It is indeed a "covering" letter, for it covers all the sins of the foe, all his dark deeds before and during the war, and all the recklessness by which he has been condemned and must suffer for those sins. It is, at the same time, a sharp rebuke to the Teuton peace parliamentaries for "utterly failing to understand the position in which Germany stands today."

This fact, the French premier explains, forces him to open his letter with "a clear statement of the judgment of the world which has been formed by practically the whole civilized mankind." Then he enumerates, not under so many headings, but in smoother and eloquent sequence, the long series of crimes to which, he says, the foe must turn if he seeks the reason for the stern justice of the peace.

She armed feverishly by land and sea and spread the falsehood that her neighbors were jealous of her.

She developed a widespread system of espionage and intrigue all over the world.

She kept Europe in a ferment by threats of violence.

She encouraged Austria to declare war on Serbia at 48 hours' notice, fully aware that the conflict would become general.

She conducted the war in a savage and inhuman manner.

She violated Belgian neutrality and systematically terrorized that country's inhabitants.

She was the first to use poison gas.

She was the first to bomb and shell defenseless towns.

She caused the deaths of 7,000,000 men, and injuries and sufferings to 20,000,000 others.

It also puts the powers on record as willing to receive suggestions for discharging the German reparational obligation.

This opens the way to oral discussions the Germans asked for—but not until peace is signed. It removes the grounds on which the Germans charged infringement on their sovereignty and national pride, in the reparations transactions.

Another change in the treaty text provides for the plebiscite in upper Silesia for which the Germans had insisted. It also guarantees coal from that province (presumably in the event that the plebiscite goes against Germany).
